

7 Things You Don't Know About Mexico

1

September is among the most festive months in Mexico. On September 15, churches and townhalls countrywide ring bells at 11 p.m. as cries of "Viva Mexico" echo out, in honor of the country's independence from Spain.

2

The Monarch Butterfly led the way, migrating for thousands of years along the same NAFTA trade routes later used by Mexico, USA and Canada.

3

Mexico not only has trade agreements with over 45 countries, but they also introduced the world to chocolate, corn and chilies.

4

Mexico is one of the hardest-working countries in the world, with the average employee clocking in around 2,246 hours per year or 43.2 hours each week. The OECD average is 34 hours weekly.

5

The border between Mexico and the United States is among the ten-longest globally and is one of the most frequently crossed boundaries in the world.

6

In 2017, Mexico exported the most beer in the world, surpassing $US 3.8 Billion.

7

Mexico has 35 registered UNESCO heritage sites, which is the most in the Americas and seventh in the world. These sites include Mayan temples, nature preserves and historic monuments.

8

Mexico Manufacturing isn't just for the large multinationals.

Entrada Group
Mexico, Delivered.

Entrada Group offers small-to-midsize manufactures expanding to Mexico a proven manufacturing support platform for long-term growth.
www.EntradaGroup.com